

Conversation with Kris Carr: How to Take Back Your Health

About this webinar

They say knowledge is power. Kris Carr would say that's true—especially when it comes to your health! Diagnosed with an incurable Stage IV cancer in her early thirties, Kris became a voracious learner, studying the best of western medicine and integrative care to find out what she could do to help her body survive and thrive. That quest for knowledge produced BIG results. Kris has been thriving with cancer for the past 17 years, building a transformative wellness business and sharing what she's learned with patients and wellness-seekers worldwide.

If you want to feel more empowered in your own health—or if you feel a whisper in your heart inviting you to guide others on their wellness journey—this interview is for you.

MEET THE GUEST

Kris Carr

Kris Carr is a New York Times bestselling author, wellness activist and cancer thriver. She's helped over one million women become empowered participants in their own well-being through her blog, books, and online tools. Learn more at kriscarr.com.